

Dear Commissioners, I voluntarily pay for XM radio and its services. Being on the road during the day for my sales job, I find the local traffic channel for St. Louis very helpful in planning my route. I can receive up to date reports in minutes, rather than waiting for a local station to tell me what happened an hour later. XM offers a service in a competitive market, and is successful at what they do. I encourage you to allow the free market place to decide what services we are willing to pay for, and not legislate our choices on this issue. Thank you for your consideration.

In His Grip,
Jim Henderson
